FISHING

The two most popular sport fish species at Butler State Fishing Lake are channel catfish and largemouth bass. Excellent opportunities are available for both. Additional species such as crappie, bluegill, and redear sunfish are also present. Two floating fish feeders distribute feed from mid-May through September. The feeders concentrate channel catfish and provide increased angling success.

Special length and creel limits may be in effect for some fish species. Check the Kansas Fishing Regulation Summary and all posted notices before fishing.

HUNTING

Most of the land around the lake is native grass and primarily suited for quail. The upper end of the lake has some dense woody vegetation along the creek bottoms that provides deer habitat. Turkeys, rabbits, doves, raccoons, and squirrels can occasionally be found in good numbers.

Waterfowl hunting on the lake can be excellent in the marsh vegetation at the upper end of the lake above the fishing piers.

Many furbearers are present on the area, both terrestrial and wetland.
